DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 9 is objected to because of the following informalities:
2. Claim 9 depends on claim 7, however claim 7 has been canceled. For the purposes of the examination claim 9 is considered to be dependent upon claim 1.
3. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 4, 5, 9, 10, 14, 15, 30 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Horvitz et al (US Patent No. 5864848) hereinafter Horvitz.

As to claims 1, 30 and 31, Horvitz discloses a method for integrating free text (figure 7, step 1100) with structured data (figure 7, step 1400), the method comprising: accessing a database of data records containing both structured data and unstructured data (Figure 7, steps 1100 and 1400, wherein “getting a record” is accessing), the unstructured data including at least some free text, the unstructured data relating to and independent of the structured data (at first structured data and free text are independent of each other) of the data record in which the unstructured data is found (structured data and free text are independent of each other since they have to be fetched separately); interpreting the free text linguistically and thematically to generate syntactic roles and thematic roles (column 2, lines 61-65 and column 3, lines 18-33); extracting relational facts from the synthetic roles and thematic roles (column 4, lines 50-53); integrating the relational facts with the structured data in the database of data records such that the data records relate the relational facts with the structured data (figure 9, step 1446 and figure 6B); and performing an analysis on the data records such that results of the analysis include at least some of the structured data and some of the relational facts (figure 6B, column 4, lines 36-38, wherein reviewing is considered analyzing).

As to claim 4, Horvitz discloses the method further comprising the step of applying case-frames while performing the extracting step (column 11, lines 1-2, i.e. patterns).

As to claim 5, Horvitz discloses the method further comprising structuring the relational facts into structured data tuples (figure 7, steps 1100-1400) that can be accessed and analyzed automatically.

As to claim 9, Horvitz discloses the method further comprising producing a file containing the integrated data (column 2, line 64).

As to claim 10, Horvitz discloses the method further comprising producing a file having a format selected from the group of XML, character separated values, spreadsheet format and file-based database structure (column 3, lines 39-41).

As to claim 14, Horvitz discloses the method performing data mining on the data records including the structured data and the relational facts (column 4, lines 23-29, wherein data mining occurs while both structured and unstructured data are compiled together).

As to claim 15, Horvitz discloses the method further comprising rendering a visual representation all or part of the integrated data (column 5, lines 30-34, once user modifies integrated data the visual representation of it changes, i.e. different information is displayed).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Horvitz et al (US Patent No. 5864848), hereinafter Horvitz, in view of Houle et al (US Publication No. 2007/0110313), hereinafter Houle. Horvitz teaches the method wherein performing an analysis on the data records such that results of the analysis include at least some of the structured data and some of the relational facts (Figure 6B) further comprises one or more of: identifying uncategorized problems of an entity by correlating the relational facts with the structured data; correlating the relational facts with structured data associated with sales personnel (column 4, lines 33-35 and column

3, lines 39-41). Horvitz does not explicitly teach detecting fraud based on an analysis of the data record. Houle teaches analyzing patterns and data content as to identify potential fraud (paragraph 100). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art during the time the invention was made to analyze the integrated data for the possibility of the fraud as it is well known in the art and it is an efficient method of identifying violation of the law such as identify theft.
